

Klinger Mzansi Best for the Industry

Klinger supplies the industry with the best possible products available in the market place ensuring client's pumps and valves operate to maximum efficiency

Yvonne Maduna (Standards Director) and Gareth Langton (business development manager from Klinger Mzansi)

Mechanical packing and gaskets are two critical elements for the pumping industry. Klinger Mzansi, through its manufacturing entity in Gauteng, ensures that the best products are designed and manufactured not only for the South African market place but also for the export market.

All the products are compliant with international standards and manufactured to ISO 9001 specifications.

Yvonne Maduna, Standards Director, comments, "As specialists in this sector we also play a pivotal role in educating our customers. We strive to participate in finding workable solutions to customer challenges."

"Many view gaskets as consumable items, but unless you understand the technology behind the application, incorrect utilization may often occur.

One of the key success factors within the company is the emphasis on research and development. Gareth Langton, Business Development Manager, explains, "The R&D facility has the capability to develop specific products for customer needs. There are no SABS standards for our products so we have invested a great deal into the R&D facility to ensure that our products meet international standards."

"The company is continually striving to manufacture the best products for our customers and all our products are tested regularly ensuring they meet Klinger International Group requirements."

Because quality and traceability are so critical to our Industry, Klinger's products are all manufactured under a strict ISO 9001:2008 quality management system. Batch numbering ensures manufacturing accountability from raw material receipt to final inspection and dispatch.

Maduna concludes, "Our continuous assessments ensure all products are manufactured correctly and through our R&D facility we are always looking at new developments and technologies so our customers get the best products for their business."

Klinger Mzansi

Tel: 011 842 8300

Email: sales@klinger.co.za

www.klinger.co.za